AIRPORT RESTAURANT MAKES SEMIFINALS FOR 2014 JAMES BEARD AWARD
One Flew South first airport restaurant to be considered for the award

ATLANTA — Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport’s premier restaurant, One Flew South, has made the semifinalist list for Outstanding Service by the James Beard Foundation. On Friday, the James Beard Foundation announced the list of Restaurant and Chef Award semifinalists for the 2014 James Beard Foundation Awards, the nation’s most prestigious recognition program honoring professionals in the food and beverage industries. Selected from a list of over 44,000 online entries, the prestigious group of semifinalists in 20 categories represents a wide variety of culinary talent, from exceptional chefs and dining destinations in ten different regions across the U.S., to the nation’s top wine and spirits professionals, best new restaurants, and rising star chefs. See this year’s full semifinalist list online at jamesbeard.org/awards. One Flew South is the first airport restaurant to earn a place on the coveted list.

“At the world’s busiest passenger airport, customer service is one of our top priorities,” said Hartsfield-Jackson Interim General Manager Miguel Southwell. “Part of that commitment includes creating unique experiences for travelers, such as offering fine dining options with exceptional customer service. One Flew South certainly exceeds in this endeavor. I am proud of One Flew South and the terrific staff for their hard work, and wish them luck in this competition.”

One Flew South opened on concourse E in 2008, and provides a fine dining experience featuring globally-inspired entrees and a robust sushi menu. The design of the restaurant reflects the region through the use of indigenous materials to provide travelers a unique “Atlanta” experience. One Flew South has consistently been recognized nationally and internationally for its “Southernational” cuisine from chef Duane Nutter, and for its bar program led by Tiffanie Barriere.

“From initial design to the daily operation of One Flew South, our relationship with the Atlanta airport has been paramount to the restaurant’s success today,” says One Flew South principal Daniel Halpern. “With the support of the Hartsfield-Jackson team and our own service leaders, we take great pride in offering travelers an exceptional dining experience in a welcoming and dynamic environment.”

The Airport and the One Flew South teams together acknowledge the magnitude of the Awards and are deeply grateful to the City of Atlanta as well as the millions of travelers who pass through the concourses daily. One Flew South is the first restaurant located in an airport to earn a place on the semifinalist list of the James Beard Foundation Awards.

About the James Beard Foundation

Founded in 1986, the James Beard Foundation is dedicated to celebrating, nurturing, and preserving America’s diverse culinary heritage and future. A cookbook author and teacher with an encyclopedic knowledge about food, James Beard, who died in 1985, was a champion of American cuisine. He helped educate and mentor generations of professional chefs and food enthusiasts, instilling in them the value of wholesome, healthful and delicious food. Today the Beard Foundation continues in the same spirit by administering a number of diverse programs that include educational initiatives, food industry awards, scholarships to culinary schools, publications, chef advocacy training, and thought-leader convening. The Foundation also maintains the historic James Beard House in New York City’s Greenwich Village as a “performance space” for visiting chefs. In September of 2012, the Foundation launched the Diplomatic Culinary Partnership with the U.S.

Department of State's Office of Protocol and helped create the American Chef Corps as a way to champion American chefs abroad, promote American food products and foster an interest in American culinary culture and history through international programs and initiatives.
